

ROOSEVELT LEADERS FIGHT AGAINST ODDS IN FINAL SPURT FOR CONTROL OF REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION

ARE CONTESTING EVERY SEAT THAT THEY HAVE PROTESTED BY ROLL CALL IN THE CONVENTION HALL OF ALL DELEGATES.

THIRD DECISIVE VOTE

Taft's Forces Reach Grand Total of Six Hundred and Five on Final Vote for Seating Alabama Delegation — Has New Convention Seen Planned?

Chicago, Ill., June 21, 4:00 P. M.—It is reported here that the First Regiment Armory has been rented, chairs are being placed there, and telegraph companies have been notified to be ready for instant service for a second convention. The report has not been verified.

Chicago, June 21.—Chairman Root called the convention to order at 12:25 and announced the first business would be on the report of the credentials committee.

The report of the seating of the Taft delegates in the Ninth Alabama district was made by W. T. Duvall of Washington, and declared that the findings of the national committee were sustained.

R. H. McCormick of Illinois then proposed to table the Hadley resolution. Henny of California then rose and asked that all delegates whose seats were under contest be barred but was overruled and the vote was taken by states, all delegates voting but the two from the Ninth Alabama district.

Here the Roosevelt men lost as they have on the two previous test votes. To take the motion five hundred and sixty-nine to four hundred and ninety-nine to sustain it. The convention then voted on the report of the majority of the committee and the majority report was accepted by six hundred and five yeas and four hundred and sixty-four nays. The Roosevelt men then announced they would demand a roll call on every delegation.

The Wisconsin delegation gave twenty-five votes in favor of the Taft delegates on the second roll call. The vote on the chairmanship, which was the first test vote, resulted in a vote of five hundred and fifty-eight to five hundred and two for seating Root as temporary chairman.

At two-thirty Chairman Root called for an adjournment until the next report was ready.

Another big Taft gain to 605 started the Taft people to a demonstration which however was stopped by the gavel.

Colonel Roosevelt appeared at his headquarters an hour before the time set for the convention and went over the plans for the day with his lieutenants. Senator Borah, and others of Idaho were elected for some time worked all night long in an effort to have something in the way of an ap- propriate report to present to the con- vention, when it was called to order this morning at 11:00 o'clock.

The fourth day of the convention opened with Taft the favorite for re- nomination with the possibility of a third candidate and Colonel Roosevelt apparently out of the race so far as this particular convention is con- cerned.

Ordinarily in the republican nation- al convention procedure a candidate for president would have been nomi- nated on the third day and the only business remaining for the convention to take up today would be building of the platform and adjournment.

Now as the program stands the re- port of the credentials committee may provoke extended debate; and the subject of the platform may take a half a day on the convention floor.

If the convention can get down to a point of actual nomination this week it will be late Saturday unless it is de- cided to call an adjournment until next week.

Every effort is being made today to bring about the closing of the conven- tion Saturday night. The managers of President Taft's campaign for re- nomination today asserted that the President already had assurance of a majority of 10 to 18 votes when the roll call of the nominating presidential committee was called.

William J. Barnes, Jr., of New York declared that all talk of a compromise the President would have at least ten votes over those necessary for the nomination and that he expected that this majority would be increased by six or more votes.

There was much conjecture and gossip this morning as to the exact num- ber of delegates that Colonel Roosevelt could depend on to stay with him through any sort of a move that the former president might decide upon.

Also there seemed to be a sentiment among recognized leaders in the party to let the Roosevelt situation be its- self down to its logical point before at- tempting to go ahead with the details of winning up the convention itself.

The managers of President Taft's campaign for re-nomination today as- sumed, there was a scurrying to go from under and the colonel was left holding the bag.

Gov. Horbert S. Hadley of Missouri, Gov. Charles S. Deneen of Illinois, and Senator Borah of Idaho served notice that they would not join in a third party movement or in a halt from the regular convention. Other leaders of nearly equal prominence did likewise.

President Taft's stock went up the scale at an amazing rate, once it be- came known that the unanimity of the Roosevelt plans had been broken.

In this connection it was reported that Gov. Hadley at Col. Roosevelt en- gaged in a heated argument at one of their last conferences. Gov. Hadley, it is said, had insisted on words in mak- ing his position clear and Col. Roose- velt plainly indicated his surprise at the turn matters had taken.

Meanwhile the veteran leaders in command of the Taft campaign used their political genius adroitly for the purpose of disintegrating the Roose- velt support. They were reported to have encouraged dark horse comprom- ise talk at every opportunity and in other ways to have turned the fire from their candidate until the prelimi- nary steps in the organization of the convention had been concluded.

Congressman William H. McKinley of Illinois, President Taft's campaign manager insisted that at no time had he considered a third candidate. He declared that all talk of a compromise candidate had come from the Roose- velt men and that none of it had been given his sanction either directly or indirectly.

Taking up a review of the situation as appeared to him before today's ses- sion of the convention was called to order, Mr. McKinley declared that the Roosevelt forces were demoralized and disorganized to an extent which would preclude any further united action in or out of the convention.

The Taft leaders went into confer- ence early today for the purpose of advancing plans for both day and night sessions of the convention with a view to winding up the convention certainly by Saturday night.

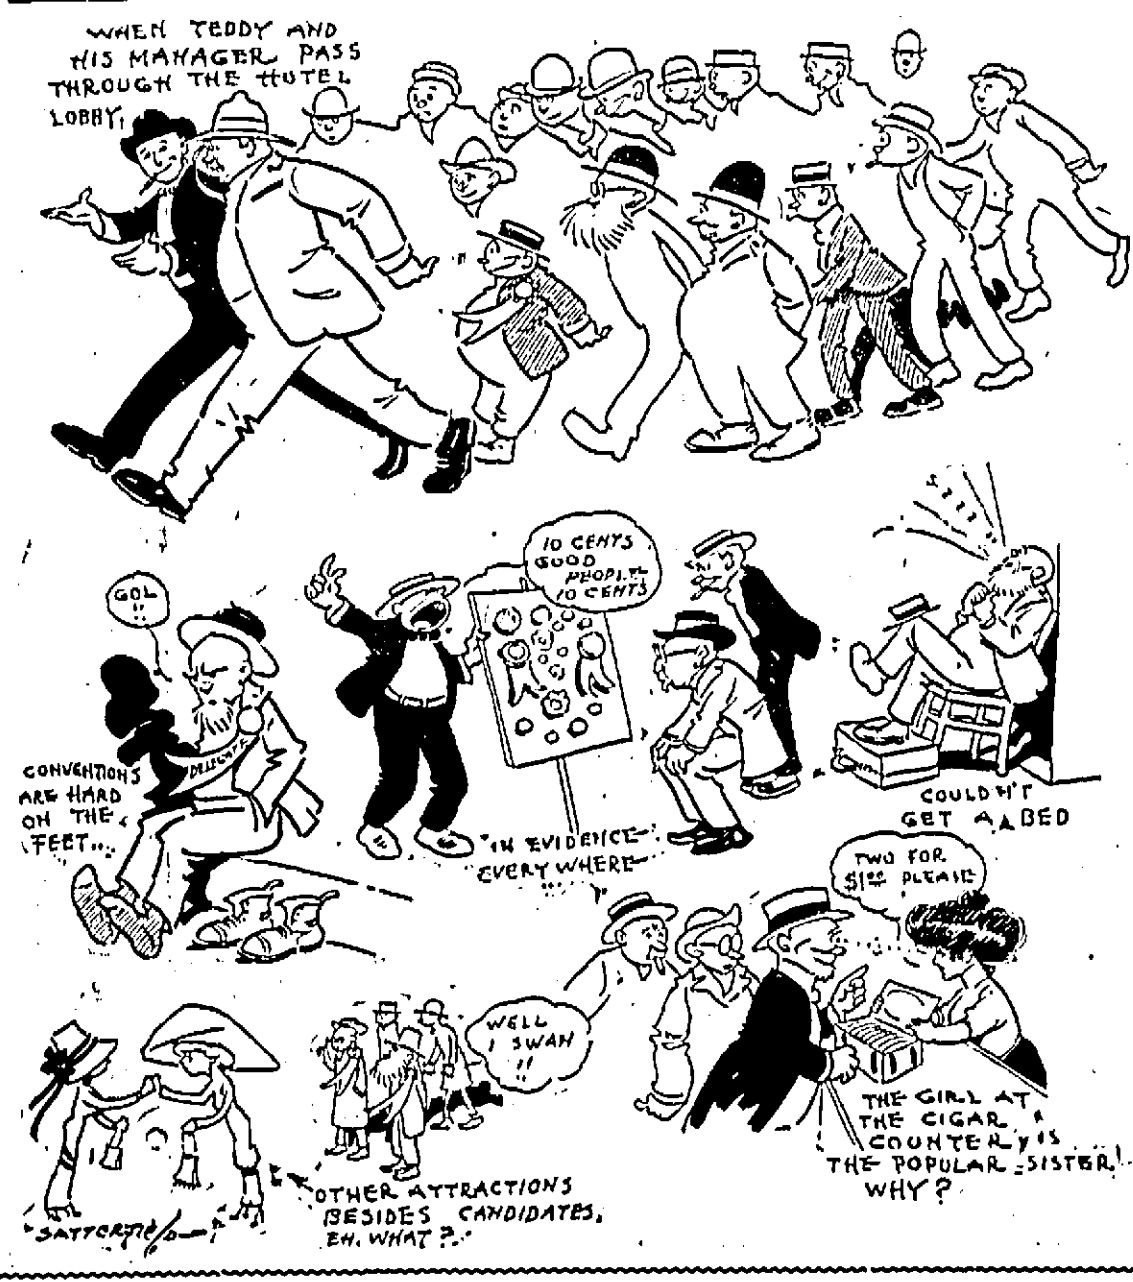

"There is absolutely no reason," said one of these leaders, "why these dele- gates should be forced to remain in Chicago over Sunday. Many of them, who came from a long distance, have important business matters to attend to next week that demand their pres- ence at home. Already they have given a solid week of their time to this convention, counting the day they left their homes and I see no valid reason for longer delaying the regular busi- ness of the convention. I believe the Roosevelt 'cyclone' has blown itself out and passed on."

However, as the hour for formal re- sumption of the convention sessions drew near there was increased discus- sion of just what action would be taken by the Roosevelt forces during the day. Repeated efforts were made to get from Col. Roosevelt the details of his further plans but without im- mediate avail.

Many were inclined to think that the plan of "passive resistance" map- uted that the president already was assured of a majority of sixteen or eighteen votes when a roll call on the presidential nomination comes. William Barnes, Jr., of New York declared that he knew positively that the president would have at least ten votes over the necessary number to nomi- nate and that he expected this major- ity would be increased by six or more votes.

There was much conjecture and gossip this morning as to the exact num- ber of delegates that Col. Roosevelt could depend on to stay with him through any sort of a move that the former president might decide upon. Outside of California, Pennsylvania, and possibly Kansas, it was predicted that Col. Roosevelt would get comparatively little support among delegates on any proposition that might compromise the "regularity" of the men who followed him.

For, in the last analysis, the Roose- velt followers plainly demonstrated that they were willing to do almost anything for Col. Roosevelt except, as it is known in racing parlance, "see the point of turning all their bridges behind them and taking their chances on a dead open and what game of win- ped out by the Roosevelt managers would be discarded before it had been placed in fair working order. Ac- cording to this plan the Roosevelt delegates were not to vote on motions connected with the work and organi- zation of the convention but were to place Col. Roosevelt's name in nomi- nation.

Also if a candidate is nominated with the votes of the alleged "frauden- t" delegates, it was announced that the Roosevelt forces would call a con- vention in Chicago for the first week in August, to which all progressives will be invited and at which it is ex- pected that Col. Roosevelt will be nominated for the presidency.

According to one of the progressive newspapers Woodrow Wilson would be selected as Col. Roosevelt's run- ning mate.

With the approach of the time for nominations, United States Senator W. S. Kenyon and Congressman S. E. Proctor of Iowa, were particularly ac- tive in behalf of the candidacy of Sen- ator Cummins. Both said they ex- pected important developments today that might decide the chances of the Iowa senator's success.

There were strong indications in the Taft camp also, that the leaders had gotten together on their program and that he sessions of the conven- tion today might bring forth a clear cut outline of what these leaders in- tended to do.

Final plans were discussed at a number of breakfast councils, during which communications were received from nearly all state leaders as to late developments last night.

With the knowledge that the cred- entials committee had not nearly completed its report the delegates to the republican national convention were slow to move toward the Coli- sseum this morning for the opening session at 11:00.

At eleven a. m. word came that the convention was to proceed on a pur- tial report from the committee on cre- dentials that brought the delegates rapidly to their seats to prepare for the struggle.

It was declared that the Roosevelt forces would make their last "big fight" in the convention today. They had expected to make their stand on the credentials report as a whole, but were prepared to meet the change of plan and fight it throughout the in- dividual cases.

The gallery filled up slowly and ten minutes after the Coliseum was called to order by Chairman Root there were many vacant seats. High above the noise of the shuffling of feet and the shifting of chairs through the big auditorium a clear soprano in a cool song and a handsome woman dressed in a blue tailored suit with a big red hat appeared far up in the band stand under the steel girders of the roof and accompanied by the orchestra sang several songs.

From then on there was a series of mild demonstrations. The Roose- velt men in the Pennsylvania delega- tion had a new call the refrain of which was "Sixty-five Roosevelt" re- ferring to the sixty-five delegates led by Senator Filmer for the ex-president.

The Pennsylvania delegates also brought out a new yell, it was "Ray Ray, Ray! Pennsylvania sixty-five for Roosevelt, Ray, Ray, Ray!" When to William Jennings Bryan climbed into the press stand and took his seat as an ordinary reporter the band played "Shouldn't you acquaintances be forgot- ten" It was then ten minutes before time for convening but Senator Root Senator Crane, Jns. B. Watson, Gov. Horner Hadley, Senator Borah, former governor Fort, of New Jersey, and other leaders of both factions sat idly on the platform. Governor Hadley and Crane engaged in smiling conver- sation while awaiting word from the credentials committee.

Believed That Democratic National Committee Will Ratify Parker Election in Spite of Protest of Bryan's Friends.

Baltimore, Md., June 21.—That the democratic national committee will ratify the selection of Judge Parker of New York as temporary chairman of the democratic national convention was the statement made today by na- tional committee men who lead the successful fight on the arrangement committee yesterday to name the former democratic presidential candi- date from New York.

William Jennings Bryan will be here Sunday to lead the fight against Judge Parker. In the meantime friends of Mr. Bryan say they will canvass the national committee men so as to ascertain if the choice of the arrangement committee can be set aside by the full committee. Both sides agree that the fight will be carried to the convention floor and that it will come before the convention af- ter Chairman Mack has called the convention to order next Tuesday.

Adherents of Judge Parker asserted that the national committee has already been canvassed by them and that it will oppose Mr. Bryan as it did last winter when the motion was made to mount J. M. Guffey of Penn- sylvania.

It is the first time in many years the members of the committee said that such a situa- tion has intruded into a national con- vention.

The mother armed with a revolver set out in search of the assailant but fearing a repeated attack on her daughter she returned to the house and it was two or three hours before the authorities were notified. The identity of the assailant is unknown.

MEN ARE GOING THE LIM- IT IN CLOTHES THIS YEAR

By J. R. HAMILTON
Former Advertising Manager of Wan- amaker's, Philadelphia.

Joel Chandler Harris, the au- thor of Uncle Remus, was at his desk one night when an old-time reporter looked over and said:

"Joe, how do you spell 'graphic'? With one 'f' or two?"

"Well," said the kindly Uncle Remus who was to gentle to hurt even a common adjective, "if you are going to use any, Bill, I guess you might as well go the limit."

"This is evidently the attitude of most men" this season toward clothes. They seem to be thinking that if it is necessary to use any clothes at all, they might as well "go the limit."

Consequently many manufacturers are rushed to capacity; men's stores are busier than they have ever been before and this is be- coming generally known as a "clothes year."

So you will find this paper filled with its advertising of men's attire this month. For every mer- chant is quick to see and to meet an extra demand.

Of course, this is also the "month of brides," and one of the chief perquisites of brides is new clothes, even to the male con- tingent of her court. You may be only the bride's brother, or even the bridegroom, but you can't go around looking like a rag man in this month of roses no-matter how trivial the importance of your relationship may be.

Wherefore, most men having to have something new, are doub- ling the bet in sporting fashion and coming out new throughout.

It is a season of male debut- antes. Barring the sex handicap of a low neck and a bit of lace, the young men are running an equal, race for attractiveness. Even older men are disporting themselves with sartorial flip- pancy, while grey hair is actually becoming enviable because it contrasts so well with the "natty blues."

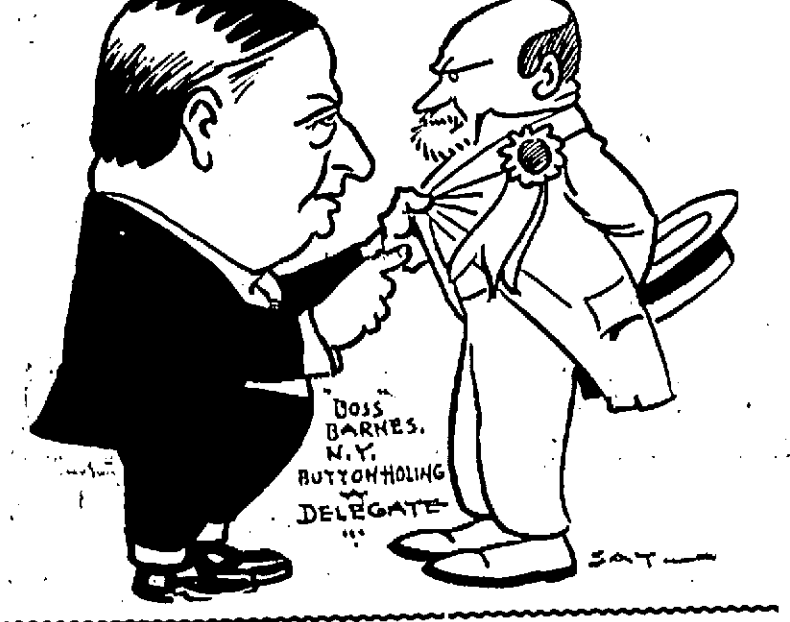

Wherefore you will be a lonely man within unless you become a new man throughout. Shoes and hosiery, shirts and collars and ties are all a part of this season's requisites.

That is why you will find this paper so filled with the advertis- ing of the things you are going to wear. And that is why you will find this advertising so interest- ing.

Better turn to it now and fol- low it carefully until you are ready to buy. The store that ad- vertises is the safe place to go. Better not experiment this year.

Style is a dangerous thing, and you are either going to come out of some unknown store looking so shoddy that you can't hold your own wife, or out of some re- liable store so attractively that your own wife can't hold you.

sent a minority report in favor of the Roosevelt contestants.

With the presentation of McCormick's report the question was raised as to what standing it would have. Chairman Root stated that in a con- vention of this kind a minority re- port would not have a place and was immediately rebuffed by the Roosevelt followers before he could finish his statement.

Stopping to the front of the plat- form the chairman stated in a voice that could be heard over the entire hall that "however, under the exist- ing circumstances he would accept a minority report unless the convention ordered otherwise. Immediately this gave the anti-Roosevelt members that chance for dissent and calling their opponents, which they did.

Governor Hadley of Missouri then rose, was called to the platform, and greeted with cheers as he offered a motion that the minority report be substituted for the majority and that none of the delegates whose seats would be affected should be permitted to vote.

This brought up the point at issue two days ago and decided by chairman Root that except for the seats of those directly affected all delegates seated by the national committee could vote. Immediately Delegate Wadsworth of New York rose for a point of order and stated that the point was not well taken and that on such a motion of no great importance to the republican party he desired the vote of the con- vention.

Watson then rose and made a mo-

HAIL AND WIND DID DAMAGE TO CROPS

Storm Swept Over Rock County Thursday Afternoon—Hail Big as Hens' Eggs.

Rock County was visited by a hail and wind storm Thursday afternoon that did considerable damage along the river road between Janesville and Beloit, and swept over other parts of the county. Grain and gardens suffered the most from the storm which came about twenty and was most freakish in its course, going by jumps from one field to another. Near Powers and Yost's Park the damage appears to have been the most severe and here the hail was this morning shoveled up in sacks and taken to this city and Beloit. Some of the stones were as big as hens' eggs. The storm lasted about ten minutes and was very severe while it was on.

CONVENTION DRINKS TOO MANY FOR THEM

Five Men Plead Guilty to Drunkenness in Municipal Court This Morning—Three Jailed.

Convention jollifications were too much for six men who, this morning were brought before Judge McMillan charged with drunkenness. Davis, a beggar, was sent to jail for eight days because he was unable to pay a fine of $4 and costs. He claimed that his home was in Colorado and that he only came here last Tuesday. "Dick" Leonard, a puzzle card writer, was not able to pay the slight fine of $1 and costs and had to take three days' imprisonment. H. W. Lee of Portage had a wait of an hour between trials while on his way from Rockford to Madison and let his third trial be the better of him in that time. He was allowed to go on his promise to pay a fine of $1 and costs. Charles "Chick" Hallow paid a fine of $5 and costs. Complaint was made that he tried to pick a fight at the fair grounds yesterday. Charles Doyce, a former offender, was given six days and Ben Meyer, a vagrant, sent on his way out of town.

WORK EIGHT FEET BELOW WATER INSIDE COFFER-DAM

By Piling Excavated Material on Outside Water is Kept Out With Little Difficulty.

Men constructing the east bank abutment of the Fourth avenue bridge are at work eight feet below the surface of the river inside the coffer-dam where the concrete foundation is to be poured. By banking the mud drawn up by the orange-peel dredge against the sides of the coffer-dam the water has been kept out with little difficulty. A little is constantly trickling through, but not enough to interfere. The men loosen up the mud and gravel at the bottom with spades and pile it up so that the dredge can pick it up in large quantities. The excavation has some of the deepest in the city and it now appears that concrete will be poured for the east bank abutment before the one on the west bank.

WILL LET ALL SEWER WORK IN ONE CONTRACT

City Council of Opinion That Saving to City Can Be Effected in This Manner.

All sewer work projected for this year is to be let under one contract according to a statement made by Mayor Patters today. Hitherto, separate bids have been asked for each extension. The council believes that economies can be effected by the change as contractors can do the work with less expense and submit lower bids per unit of construction for large jobs than they can for scattered smaller ones. It is a distinct advantage to the contractor to do all his season's work in one place. He can keep his men at work more steadily and is not put to additional expense for transportation of tools and machinery. The council will make every effort to insure the completion of all sewer construction projected before cold weather sets in.

Sheriff and Mrs. Volkman of Janesville are visiting at the home of J. P. Holber on South Jackson street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Blackman returned today from Chicago where they had been on an automobile trip in Mr. Palmer's car. The party was caught in a storm yesterday afternoon while repairing a tire between Rockford and Elgin, and the force of the wind was so great that it threatened to carry off the Jack. For a time they thought they were in a genuine tornado.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hoers leave tomorrow morning on an automobile trip to Green Bay, Wis. They expect to return next Tuesday.

Attorney L. E. Gettle of Edgerton was in this city on business today.

Mrs. E. H. Hanson spent the day with friends in Avalon.

Judge J. B. Clarke of Beloit was at the court house on business this morning.

INSTALLING SYSTEM OF BLOCK SIGNALS

Poles for New Automatic System on Northwestern Road Being Put in Between Harvard and Evansville.

A construction train and crew on the Madison division of the Northwestern railroad, working out of this city at present, putting in the poles and doing the preliminary work for the establishment of a system of automatic block signals between Harvard and Evansville. Thus far in the work only the poles have been placed, but later the signal arms will be placed on them and the blocks connected up with the batteries and the track. The automatic block system is electrically operated, huge tubes buried in the ground furnishing the power for operating the arms. The batteries are connected with the arms of the signal, and with the rails for a certain distance on the tracks away from the signal. When an engine runs over the rails, which are connected to the signal and battery, the current is closed, and the signal arm drops, throwing the block against a train that might follow the first train.

MAY BUILD ADDITION TO ST. PAUL SHOPS

Further Improvement of the Equipment of the St. Paul Railroad in this City Planned by Officials of the Road.

It is understood, through the building of an addition to the company's shops in this city, by the construction of a number of engine stalls at the rear of the present roundhouse. Surveyors recently surveying the plot of ground at the back of the roundhouse to furnish figures to show whether it will be possible to put up a building there, if possible, it is said, twelve new stalls will be built. The present roundhouse is rather small for the needs of the company, as only ten engine stalls are provided and more are necessary. The erection of additions at either side of the roundhouse are not possible because of the nearness of the tracks to the Mineral Point and the Racine and Southwestern divisions, so the only feasible plan seems to be to build the stalls at the rear.

Already the general offices of the road have approved the plan for establishing a dispatching office in this city; it is understood, Janesville is the center for considerable activity for the railroad, and with additional facilities, the road will be better able to handle the traffic through here.

COUNTY CLERKS HAD A GOOD CONVENTION

Howard W. Lee, Returned From Grand Rapids Today and Reports Interesting Sessions.

Howard W. Lee, county clerk of Rock county, returned at noon today from Grand Rapids, Wis., where he attended the sessions of the Wisconsin county clerks' convention. He reports the gathering the most interesting one ever held by the county clerks in this state. The sessions of the convention closed yesterday and the following officers were elected: H. S. Offerdahl, St. Croix county, president; John Brandt, Lincoln county, vice president, succeeding Mr. Offerdahl; Earl M. LaPlant, secretary, Door county, succeeding H. W. Lee, who has held the office for the past two years; and Valentine D. Ruhl, Langlade county, treasurer. Mr. Ruhl has held this office since the clerks organized. The next meeting will be at Appleton in 1913.

Among the matters of special interest which were discussed was the proposition of employing an expert accountant and auditor for the counties. Earl M. LaPlant, Sturgeon Bay, gave a very fine paper on this topic and the general sentiment seemed to be that a uniform system of accounting for the counties would be an advantage.

L. F. Bloomacher of Waupaca talked on the income tax. The prevailing feeling was in favor of giving the law a fair trial and if it did not fulfill the standards have been set for it, secure its repeal. Nels Haugen of the tax commission, and A. H. Hirst of the highway commission also addressed the convention. Among the surprises of the session yesterday was the statement by Mr. Hirst that he was not in favor of state aid for highways as soon as the county systems had been perfected so that roads might be built intelligently.

Grand Rapids provided many entertainment features for the county clerks, including a fifty mile automobile trip through the city, and the picturesque Wisconsin valley.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

by DAN MCCARTY

In the old days it was considered a cute thing to yell "Kill the umpire." Nothing very dire need to happen to the persons who used this impolite expression at the league games. And it was observed that occasionally when some bold fellow actually did try to kill the umpire, the assailant escaped with light punishment.

But times have changed. It is advisable now never to call an umpire anything worse than a molly.

coddle" or a "honeyfugler," unless you speak under your breath. And disaster may happen to the fan who is not careful with his flats in the umpire's presence. So at least think a Pennsylvania fan who a few days ago carelessly permitted himself to attack an umpire. The fan is now doing time in an Allegheny county jail. The judge gave him nine months and a $100 fine.

Character the Great Requisite.
Character, as an element of success in life, tells more than knowledge.

menace. The tournament this year will possess special interest for Americans owing to the fact that Jack McDermott, the national open champion of America, is among the entrants. He is the first American-born champion to compete for the British championship. McDermott expresses considerable confidence in his ability to finish well up among the leaders at Muirfield next week. His confidence is shared by many experts who have watched his practice work at Walton Heath and elsewhere since he arrived in England several weeks ago.

Miss Elizabeth Marbury, a New York theatrical agent, was condemning the shrewish, scolding type of woman. "You can always tell her," said Miss Marbury. 'Yes,' she answered angrily, 'my husband was out late last night.'"

In Jack Johnson, the colored heavyweight, Jim Flynn has one of the most skillful opponents that ever wore the padded muffs. Johnson is a past master of the finer points of boxing, and he knows all the fighting tricks of the ring. He can block blows with ease and counter with precision. He seldom takes a smash of a dangerous character, so skillful is his defense.

JACK JOHNSON IS GETTING IN FINE SHAPE FOR BATTLE WITH JIM FLYNN

Jack Johnson at Las Vegas.

Jack Johnson is in constant training at Las Vegas and his trainers report very satisfactory progress. Johnson's camp, and the big fighter himself, are objects of great interest to the residents of Las Vegas. There is always a good crowd to watch him as he goes through his various stunts. In the above picture Jack is seen skipping the rope.

REBELLION IN CUBA A POLITICAL PLOT?

Cuban Newspaper Openly Charges President Gomez With Having Rebellion Started to Gain Political Prestige.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Havana, Cuba, June 21.—The rumor which has long been current that President Jose Miguel Gomez instigated the revolution in Cuba for the purpose of having the opportunity of quelling it and thus increasing his chances of re-election for the presidency, have now taken the form of direct charges made particularly by a newspaper, the "El Dia." The paper declares that Gomez personally arranged with General Evaristo Estenoz to start the revolution and then he bought off.

President Gomez was then to pose as a strong man capable of dominating any situation and indispensable to the Cuban republic. The paper also charged that Gomez was fully informed of the details of the outbreak before March 1912, but took no precautionary measures, but kept in constant touch with General Estenoz.

Shall Ships be Recalled? Washington, June 21.—While the navy department is striving to have the battleships recalled from Cuba to participate in the regular fleet exercises which were mapped out for them long before the trouble in Cuba took on a serious aspect, it is not believed that the ships will be taken away and the marines left behind. At the same time officials here are reluctant to take away any of the marine guards at this time. One plan suggested is to withdraw the battleships and substitute the Atlantic reserve fleet. The Cuban situation as a whole, is regarded by the state department as better.

OVERRULED CHALLENGE FOR WITNESS AGAINST DARROW. [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Los Angeles, Calif., June 21.—Judge Hutton ruled against the defense today on the challenge of John H. Harrington eligibility as a witness in the bribery trial of Clarence S. Darrow. Harrington's testimony, however, will be limited to that pertaining to the alleged crime in which he participated with the defendant, Harrington, then resumed the stand.

TO REPORT ON IMPEACHMENT OF JUDGE ROBERT ARCHBOLD. COMING CONVENTION TWENTY-FIRST HELD BY DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Party Was Born in Bank Controversy of 1791—History of Conventions
Dates Back to 1832.

Washington, D. C., June 21.—The convention which opens in Baltimore next Tuesday will be the twenty-first national assembly of the Democratic party, while the one now in session in Chicago is only the fifteenth republican national gathering. But the Democratic party surpasses the Republican in age much more than this difference would indicate. Born in the bank controversy of 1791, christened by Jefferson, its founder, in 1792, and strengthened in the division among the people which Washington's neutrality proclamation at the beginning of the Anglo-French war in 1793 caused, the Democratic party passed its centennial work more than a decade ago.

But the history of the party's conventions dates back only to 1832, in which year the national delegate convention for president and vice-president was adopted. The first national Democratic convention was held on May 12, 1832, at Baltimore, and adopted two rules which have guided the actions of all subsequent conventions. One of these provided that the delegates, when so instructed should cast the votes of their states as a unit, and the other that no candidate should be nominated without a two-thirds majority. Andrew Jackson was nominated for president and Martin Van Buren for vice president. They were elected.

The second national Democratic convention met on May 25, 1840, also at Baltimore, and nominated Martin Van Buren for president and Richard Johnson for vice president. This ticket was successful in the subsequent election.

The third convention, held on May 5, 1840, at Baltimore, re-nominated Van Buren, but named no candidate for vice president, leaving that to the several states. It also put forward the first complete platform ever adopted by the party. Parts of this platform were incorporated into the declaration of every national Democratic convention prior to the civil war, and its leading ideas have reappeared in many of the party platforms of the last 50 years.

In 1844 the national Democratic convention again assembled at Baltimore. Van Buren had a majority of the instructed delegates for his nomination. James K. Polk was a candidate for vice president. Unfortunately for Van Buren he was not on the popular side in regard to the burning question of the annexation of Texas. Again the two-thirds rule was introduced, and assured Van Buren's defeat. After a three days' struggle the nomination was given to Polk.

In the convention of 1848, also in Baltimore, took place the first of the great "walk-outs" in Democratic national assemblies; the others being in 1860 and 1896. The party in New York was divided into two hostile factions. The national convention attempted to patch up a truce between them by admitting the delegates which, each chose, allowing each to cast half the votes. The result was that the faction whose choice was defeated indignantly withdrew from the convention. Lewis Cass of Michigan was named for president and William C. Butler of Kentucky for vice president. This ticket was defeated by Taylor and Fillmore, Whigs.

Franklin Pierce of New Hampshire, a "dark horse" whose name had not been publicly mentioned as a candidate, won the presidential nomination at the national Democratic convention held in Baltimore in 1852. William H. King of Alabama was nominated for vice president, but did not live to fill the office.

The convention which met at Cincinnati, on June 2, 1860, lasted four days and resulted in the nomination of James Buchanan of Pennsylvania for president and John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky for vice president.

The most fateful convention which was ever held in the United States was that which opened at Charleston, S. C., on April 23, 1860, which lasted ten days and took 57 unavailing ballots, and which split the party into a Northern and Southern section, each of which had a separate convention in another place and put up a ticket of its own. One faction named Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois and Herschel V. Johnson of Georgia, while the other nominated John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky and Joseph Louis of Oregon. Both were defeated at the polls by Abraham Lincoln and Hannibal Hamlin, Republicans.

The main purpose for holding the Democratic national convention which met in Chicago on August 30, 1864, was to prevent the party's organization from going wholly to pieces. The convention adopted a platform which declared the war a failure and nominated Gen. George H. McClellan of New Jersey for president and George N. Pendleton of Ohio for vice president. Only three states ratified the convention's action.

In the convention of 1868, the only one ever held in New York, Horatio Seymour of New York was named for president and F. P. Blair of Missouri for vice president. This ticket was easily beaten by the republican ticket of Grant and Colfax.

The 1872 convention of the Democrats was held at Baltimore. It accepted Horace Greeley, the nominee of the seceding element of the Republican party, and named B. Gratz Brown of Missouri for vice president, but the regular Republicans in that year repudiated their victory of 1868.

In their convention of 1876, in St. Louis, the Democrats nominated their strongest and ablest man, Samuel J. Tilden of New York, with Thomas A. Hendricks of Indiana for vice president. They came within one vote in the electoral college of electing their ticket.

Since 1876 the national conventions and nominees of the Democratic party have been as follows:

Thomas A. Hendricks of Indiana for vice president.
1888, at Chicago, Grover Cleveland of New York for president and Allen G. Thurman of Ohio for vice president.
1892, at Chicago, Grover Cleveland of New York for president and Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois for vice president.
1896, at Chicago, William J. Bryan of Nebraska for president and Arthur S. Bowers of Maine for vice president.
1900, at Kansas City, William J. Bryan of Nebraska for president and Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois for vice president.
1904, at St. Louis, Alton B. Parker of New York for president and Henry G. Davis of West Virginia for vice president.
1908, at Denver, William J. Bryan of Nebraska for president and John W. Kern of Indiana for vice president.

El Paso, Texas, June 21.—The Mexican federal force is converging on Juarez and when united will number about 3,000 men, and with their artillery the federals expect to have little resistance at the Juarez garrison as the force there numbers much less than 1,000. Baltimore.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, June 21.—William J. Connor, the Buffalo, N. Y., democratic leader, has the distinction of being the only convention visitor to come to Chicago in a private yacht.
"I sailed into the river," said Connor last night, "and had I thought for a minute I could just as well have sailed on down to Fourteenth street and tied up opposite the Coliseum. I made better time though by sailing down in a taxicab."

One of the first men met by Connor when he reached the Coliseum was William J. Bryan.
"What's the matter?" asked Connor, "forbidding the democrats for the republicans?"
"Not yet," answered Bryan. "Just doing some newspaper reporting."

"Going to Baltimore?"
"Yes."
"Going to be a reporter there too?"
"Not me—I'll be too busy other-wise."

"Well, I'm here for newspaper work too—but not doing much of it myself. Good-bye."

IMPATIENCE MARKS GENERAL ATTITUDE

American People Unable to Bear
Restraint, Says University Professor in Address at Normal Commencement.

River Falls, Wis., June 21.—"Our time is marked by an increasing impatience of restraint. Asocialism have lost their force. The churches have given up their prohibitions against novel reading, theater-going, dancing and card-playing. 'Harmless recreation' and 'innocent amusement' have become phrases to conjure with."
Some present-day tendencies were thus described by Prof. Edward A. Ross, professor of sociology in the University of Wisconsin, in his commencement address at the River Falls normal school this morning, speaking on the subject, "Sub-Surface Tendencies in American Society," all continued:

"The conscious quest of pleasure is more general and unremitting than ever before in our history and there is increasing impatience with any restraint upon one's will not dictated by the obvious and immediate welfare of other human beings. People are less subservient to their burdens and they refuse to be guided by the old 'God's will.' There is a danger in the relax of grip of moral traditions. When people try to settle for themselves what is right and what is wrong, they conclude that it is right for me to do anything I like provided it doesn't harm another. This is too low a standard, for the harm of wrong lines of conduct does not fall upon definite persons."

"A well intentioned assemblyman takes money from an insurance company trying to accelerate action upon a reasonable piece of legislation, and justifies himself thus: 'The bill was not against the public interest; the insurance company had the money to spend; if I hadn't taken it away, I would have, and with the money I have lifted the mortgage on my farm. Who has been harmed?' Only the experts are able to point out to this man that his action has encouraged the company that this time it has slipped through a good bill by the use of money to try next to slip through a bad bill by the use of money; and that everywhere in the state gray wolves who catch the scent of money will redouble their efforts to get into the legislature."

"A community lynches a negro for an atrocious crime and justifies itself by saying, 'What's the harm? The miscreant got only his just deserts and the expense of a trial is saved.' Only the wisest can point out that such yielding to forcible passions makes the next yielding easier, that the community that hangs now will be burning its victims at the stake in five years, that the community that begins lynching for atrocious will end by lynching for minor offenses. The fact is that offhand, snap-shot judgment about conduct can only end in disaster. Amid the complexity of our life today the average man is as confused as a greenhorn dropped down in the engine room of an ocean liner and bidden to run her. More than ever before the people need the counsel of experts. In making their distinctions between right and wrong, they need not only the clergyman but they need on particular groups of questions the guidance of the physicians, the geologists, the educators, the settlement workers, the charity experts and the economists."

"Never was there more promise for the honest, courageous, trained man who has fitted himself to give wise leadership to a people groping amid the difficulties of a new and little comprehended social order."

One hundred shots were fired and the bandits escaped with about $3,000.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

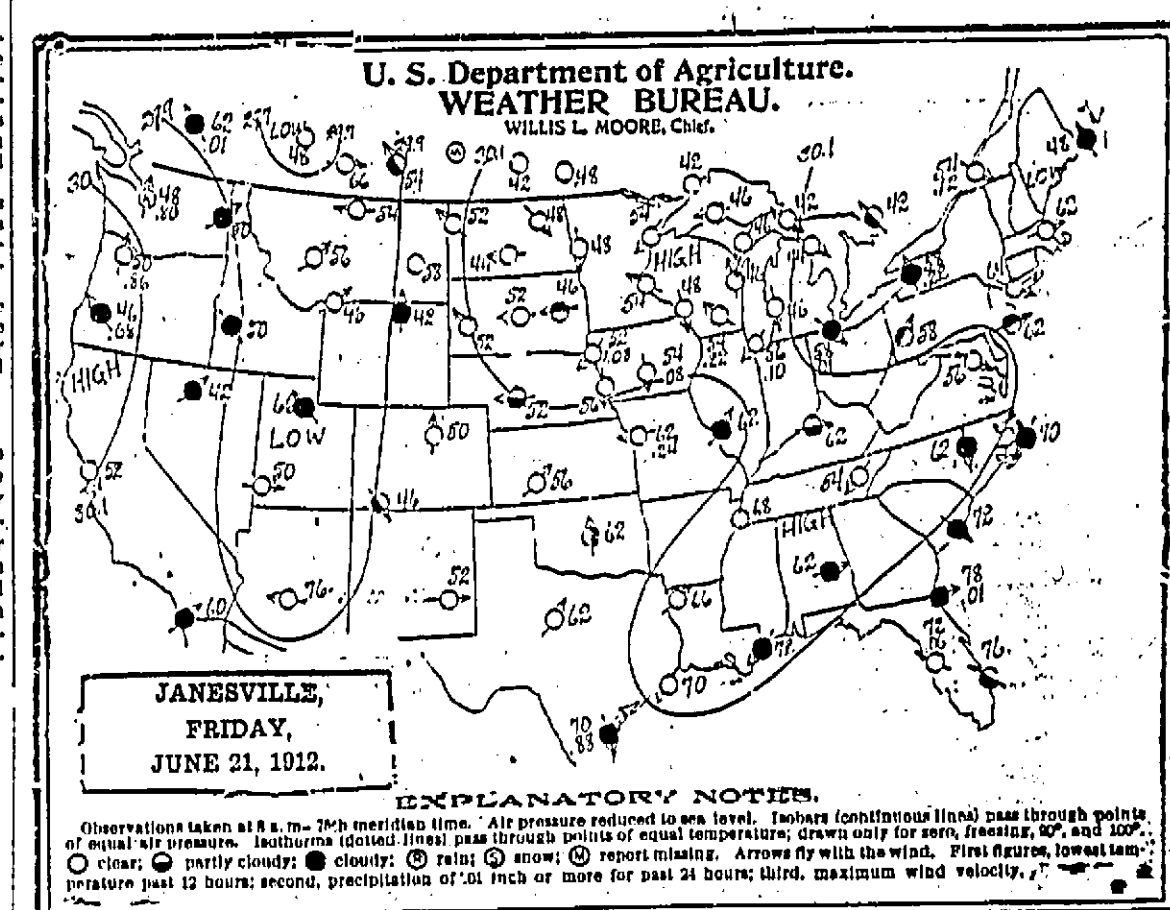

The area of low atmospheric pressure in the northeast has reached the lower St. Lawrence Valley. It is followed by a trail of showers and thunderstorms that extends over Lakes Ontario and Erie, and the southern end of Lake Michigan to the Missouri valley.

The area of high barometer that has prevailed in the west for several days has now moved eastward to the central and southern states. It is attended by generally fair weather.

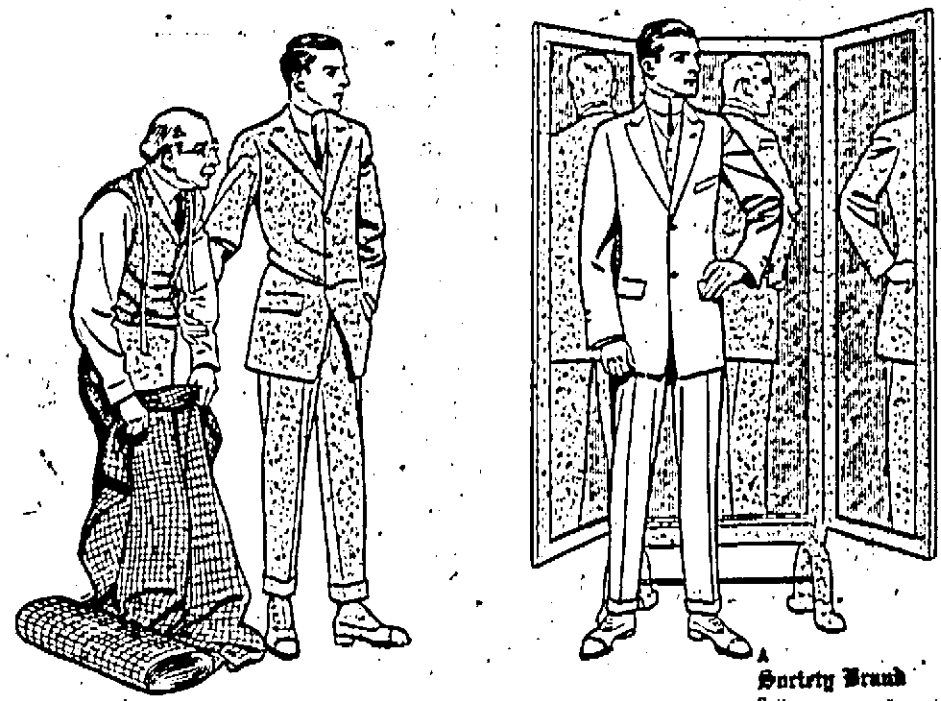

The barometric depression in the west is still the other side of the Rocky Mountains. It is attended by cloudiness in the Great Basin, and rainfall on the north Pacific coast.

Parchment From the Greeks.
The Greeks of Pergamon are said to have prepared parchment from the skins of the goat or sheep. They were curried, deprived of all fat, then uniformly by the knife, dyed, or whitened, and finally rubbed down with pumice stone to a smooth and even surface. Called pergamenum from the city of its origin, the new material became "parchment" in the English tongue.—National Magazine.

When Husbands Tire of Kissing.
When a wife discovers that her husband is tired of kissing her, she never after that neglects it. She thinks it a sign that she is a lovely character because she often kisses her husband when he doesn't like it. Men are such cowards that they never confess that they are tired of kissing their own wives.—Aitchison Globe.

GEN. EDWARD BRAGG ANSWERS LAST CALL

Famous Leader of Iron Brigade Dead at Fond Du Lac Home After a Long Illness.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Fond du Lac, Wis., June 21.—General Edward B. Bragg, famous leader of the Iron Brigade of the Civil War, died at his home in Fond du Lac, Wis., today, after a long illness.

General Bragg was born at Unionville, N. Y., Feb. 20, 1827, and received his education at Geneva College. Soon after his admission to the bar in 1848 he went west to the bar in Chicago, Ill., and later he continued to make his home in the West.

Early in May, 1861, he entered the Union army as a captain of Company B of the Sixth Wisconsin regiment. He was promoted to the grade of lieutenant colonel, and from Geneseeville to Antietam he had command of the regiment. He led it in the charge up South Mountain, where his command was given the overhanging name of the Iron Brigade.

He was wounded at Antietam and laid up for some time in a hospital. While his regiment was on the way to the battle of Fredericksburg the colonel joined it, and was with it in that contest. His wound still troubled him. The following spring he led his regiment in the pontoon charge which crossed the Rappahannock river below Fredericksburg, known as the battle of the Muddy Creek.

He went from there to Chancellorsville. His long service in hard campaigns, and the many exposures, brought on sickness that compelled him to turn the command over to Lieut. Col. H. H. Dawes, and was taken to Washington, where he was when the Gettysburg campaign was entered upon. Though utterly unfit for service he insisted on leaving, and started for Gettysburg, but did not reach there in time for the battle. It was the only great battle of the Iron Brigade except the closing contests ending at Appomattox, in which he did not lead his regiment or the brigade.

Loved as Commander.

It was largely through the efforts of Col. Bragg that the Sixth Wisconsin regiment re-enlisted in January, 1864, for three years more. He came home with his soldiers, remained a month, and then returned to the field. He was in command of the regiment May 3, 1864, in the battle of the Wilderness. Soon after that, in consequence of the wounding of Gen. Roy Stone, Col. Bragg was placed in command of a brigade of Pennsylvania Bucktails. While in this command Col. Bragg was conspicuous in all of the great battles from Culpeper to Petersburg, including the Wilderness, Laurel Hill, Spotsylvania, North Anna and Cold Harbor. He returned to the Iron Brigade and led it in a long list of battles, remaining in command until February, 1865.

Probably no brigade ever had more implicit confidence in its commander than the famous Iron Brigade had in Gen. Bragg. Soon after the battle of Petersburg he was promoted to the rank of brigadier general. He had command throughout the siege of Petersburg, or until August 17, when the Fifth corps, in which his brigade was serving, was sent to the left of the line, and participated in three days of battle at Weldon railroad. He was also at both battles of Hatcher's Run. Twice he was offered a brevet as major general, but declined.

Active in Politics.

After the close of the war General Bragg returned to his home in Wisconsin and resumed the practice of law. He was elected a state senator in 1867 and served for two years. From 1877 to 1885 he represented his district in Congress. He was a delegate to several Democratic national conventions and at the convention of 1884 he secured the famous phrase "We love him for the oneness he has made." Though a life-long Democratic nominee for United States senator, General Bragg declined to accept the Chicago platform and candidate, and made many telling speeches for Palmer and Buckner, the Gold Democratic candidate for President and Vice President and in 1900 he was an earnest supporter of President McKinley. In 1902 he was appointed consul-general to Havana, and later in the same year he was transferred to Hongkong. After the latter post he served four years, returning home in 1904 and retiring to private life.

ARKANSAS BANK ROBBERY IS THWARTED BY SHERIFF

One of Robbers Killed and Several Other Persons Injured After an Exciting Struggle.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Manumoth Springs, Ark., June 21.—Sheriff M. C. Caruthers, warned that an attempt to rob the Citizens' bank of Manumoth Springs would be made today, secured himself and three deputies in a room in the rear of the bank and surprised three masked robbers after they had forced the woman cashier into a vault.

Ben Jones was shot and killed by Sheriff Caruthers. Otto Burrow and Liffus Davis surrendered.

In the following excitement, the crowd that gathered began promising shooting, bullets wounding Judge J. W. Meek and John Cunningham. The excitement had hardly died when Lee Burrow, a relative of one of the men captured in the bank, was brought to town seriously wounded.

Physicians say Burrow will die, he declared Dr. Jones, father of the robber who was shot and Howard Sears a neighbor, and shot him because they believed he had informed the sheriff of the intended robbery. Dr. Jones and Sears were arrested.

The Penitent Woman, Luke vii:36-50. Golden Text—Faithful is the saying and worthy of all acceptance that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. 1 Tim. i:15.

(1.) Verse 36—What are the advantages or disadvantages of a generous and hospitable?

(2.) What was the attitude or position of the guests when partaking of a meal?

(3.) Verses 37-38—This was or had been a woman of ill fame. Would you say that she had been converted by Jesus before this, or was this her first approach to him?

(4.) How would such a woman obtain entrance to this Pharisee's house?

(5.) What did molesting the feet of another indicate in those days?

(6.) What prompted this woman to lavish such costly ointment upon Jesus' feet?

(7.) Would you say, and why, that this was a woman of ill fame? Just as pure and as good as if she had never been such a sinner? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(8.) What, if any, evidence is there that such women are being or may be as thoroughly saved today?

(9.) Verse 39—If a like woman today with a similar spiritual experience should show similar affection toward an evangelist who had been the means of her conversion, what would be thought of it?

(10.) How much can you blame this Pharisee for having doubtful thoughts of Jesus for allowing a woman of ill fame to kiss his feet?

(11.) What, if any, reason is there to suppose that if a virtuous woman had been converted by Jesus that she would have publicly manifested her love in a similar way?

(12.) Verses 40-43—What are the reasons for supposing that, as a general rule, the greatest sinners when converted become the greatest saints?

(13.) Which has the greater capacity for loving God, a virtuous woman who becomes a Christian or a thoroughly converted fallen woman?

(14.) Is it or not, and why, a general rule that those who have been forgiven sinners love most?

(15.) On what conditions will God forgive one who is a very great sinner; also one who is an ordinary respectable sinner?

(16.) Verses 44-46—Which are the more loving, generous and hospitable, those whose hearts are warm with the love of Jesus or other Christians of cooler temperament? Give your reason.

(17.) Verses 47-48—If a person loves Jesus, is that alone a guarantee that his sins are forgiven? Why?

(18.) Does Jesus mean that people love in proportion to the greatness of their sins, or what does he mean?

(19.) Verses 49-50—Can you wonder at the surprise they expressed at a man forgiving sins, and what is the answer to their objection?

Information from Abroad.

We learn from the Paris Miroir that a clergyman's union has been formed in New York which is demanding higher salaries. The movement seems to be spreading, for we read further: "While waiting for the American government to take the proper steps, 40 pastors have already renounced their charges in the state of Pittsburgh."

Chicken May Die of Grief.

Two chickens were hatched from one egg last spring on the farm of John Paulus in Bethlehem, Pa. Both developed fully and became great pets of the family. One of the twin chickens was crushed to death. Since then the other twin has refused to eat and Paulus fears it will die of grief.

Good to Forget Self Sometimes.

ing of teeth." (Matthew viii, 11, 12.)

The speaker declared that in common with the majority of ministers he had misinterpreted this and similar Scriptures to refer to all the unsightly of mankind and to imply that they are writhing in torture in a hell whose location is unknown and which he now sees to be a human tradition without authority of the Word of God.

The Pastor analyzed his text and showed that it was addressed to the Jews, that they for sixteen centuries had been God's favored nation, in harmony with His promise to Abraham. "They had much advantage every way over all the other nations—not only in the fact that the promises were given to them and the assistful influences of the Law, but additionally that to them were sent the Prophets with their encouraging messages."

Notwithstanding all these favors but comparatively few of that nation were in the heart condition to be accepted of God, to be Messiah's joint-heirs in His Kingdom. As the natural seed of Abraham they were the children or heirs of the Kingdom, and to them Jesus presented Himself. All of His miracles and teachings went to them, yet only a few were in such condition of heart that they could receive this Message.

In the context Jesus referred to the fact that the Gentile countries who had none of Israel's privileges had more faith than any Jew. Commenting upon this the Great Teacher declared that God would take from the Jews the special privileges, except such Jews as were "Israelites indeed," and that He would complete the number of His elect by a selection of suitable characters from amongst Gentiles.

The Election Hath Obtained It.

St. Paul declares, "Israel hath not obtained that which he seeketh for, but the election hath obtained it, and the rest of the nation were blinded." (Romans xi, 7.) The elect of Israel were gathered into the New Dispensation at Pentecost and subsequently, while the Jewish people as a whole became more and more blinded and darkened in understanding until their nation expired in a time of anarchy, A. D. 70. Since then the Jews have been in trouble, in sorrow.

It was to this very condition of things that Jesus referred. He used the highly figurative language common in the East. What St. Paul styled "blindness upon Israel" Jesus described as going into outer darkness—losing the light of the prophecies and the hopes of the Abrahamic promise and thus getting into the same blind and dark condition in which Gentiles in general were. The experiences of the Jews during the past eighteen centuries Jesus described as "weeping and gnashing of teeth." His words simply signify sorrow, disappointment and chagrin.

Truly the Jews have had all of these experiences. We are glad if we see in God's Word a glorious prospect for His ancient and Covenant people. St. Paul calls this promise to our attention in Romans xi, 25-27. He tells us that God's Covenant with Israel cannot be broken, but will be established, and that natural Israel shall yet receive mercy. Divine favor, at the hands and through the agency of the Church—spiritual Israel—part of whom have been selected from the Jews and some from every nation—all finally.

"Sit Down With Abraham."

The Great Teacher declares that while the natural heirs of the Messianic promises would be cast out from Divine favor, as they have been cast out for the past eighteen centuries—in the meantime Gentiles from the East and West, North and South would be found of similar character to the Gentiles whose servant was healed. And these would sit down with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the Kingdom, in the sense that they enter into rest. As St. Paul declared, "We who believe do enter into rest." This is the same rest or sitting at ease that Abraham, Isaac and Jacob enjoyed. They had God's promise that eventually He would raise up a spiritual Seed of Abraham through whom all the families of the earth would be blessed.

Abraham rested upon that promise; so did Isaac; so did Jacob. And so we rest in this Divine assurance that a blessing will come to the children of Adam in God's due time; more than this, thus seated, we are resting in the Divine promise. To us has come the wonderful assurance that, if we accept of our little all of the present life, we shall become joint-heirs with Messiah in His Kingdom, members of His Bride.

DINNER STORIES

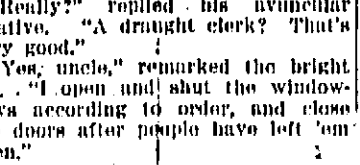

A travelling man stopped to watch a small colored boy who stood on one foot, balanced his woolly head far to one side, and pounded vigorously on his skull with the palm of his right hand. "Hello, boy," grinned the drummer, whose memory was carried back to his own boyhood days by the familiar action, "what are you doing?" "Got watch in my ear," replied the boy. "Oh, ho," laughed the drummer. "I know just how that is. Many a time I have felt just like that, after being in swimming." "Swimming?" "Well, the boy exclaimed, "Ah been eating was-tahmityum."

Willie was a smart boy, and anxious to get on. His first job was in the local bank. "Well, Willie, my boy," said his uncle to him, as he met him in the street one day, "how are you getting on in business? I suppose you'll be president of the bank—eh?" "Yes, uncle," replied Willie, "I'm getting on nicely. I'm already a draught clerk."

"Really?" replied his avuncular relative. "A draught clerk? That's very good."

"Yes, uncle," remarked the bright lad, "I open and shut the window-draws according to order, and close the doors after people have left 'em open."

Into the little village of Wuzzlevale there came a circus with brazen bands, gaily costumed, mammoth elephants, superlative clowns and fiery unfamined lions.

The boys of the place were mad with excitement and the young son of a notoriously close handed old farmer rushed up to his father and eagerly requested the price of a ticket to view the show.

"What," demanded the old skinflint, "waste good money to see a circus?"

"Yes, father," came the meek and mild reply.

"Young man," answered the older sadly, "it was only last month that I let you go to the top of it hill to see the collyer of the sun. My lad, do you want all your life to be one wicked round of gaitery?"

An old negro was brought to trial in a Southern town for stealing a chicken. "Bastard," said the judge before pronouncing sentence, "I am about to give you two months in the workhouse. Have you anything to say for yourself?" "Good Gawd boss!" exclaimed the old man. "Two months! For stealing one hen!" "Have you anything to say?" repeated the judge sternly.

"I ain no use to sen' me to no jail for two months for stealin' one chicken' 'case of I spent two months in jail for ev'ry chicken I done stole, I might as well done been bawn in jail."

In a small South Carolina town that was "finished" before the war, two men were playing checkers in the back of a store. A travelling man who was making his first trip to the town was watching the game, and, not being acquainted with the business methods of the citizens, he called the attention of the owner of the store to some customers who had just entered the front door. "Sh! Sh!" answered the storekeeper, making another move on the checker board. "Keep perfectly quiet and they'll go out."

A founder of Channington, in his daily tour of the plant, noticed an apprentice who was hammering in a rather listless manner. The founder, flushing angrily, went to the lad, took the hammer from him, and said: "Son, when I see a man hold his hammer by the end of the handle like this and strike good, hard, quick blows, like this—bang, bang, bang! 'why I pay that man $16 a week, but when a man holds his hammer by the middle of the handle, like this, and strikes as if he was tapping an egg, like this—why, I only pay him $3 a week; and he's the first to go when we get slack." The founder returned the hammer and looked at the boy sternly to see if his lesson had gone home. "Thank you, sir," was the mild reply. "And where ought I to hold it, and how ought I to strike for my $2 a week?"

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

THE HARMONISTS.

BY A. W. MACY.

Of the many communistic societies that have sprung up a season, none is more interesting than the Harmonists. This society was founded in Wurtemberg, Germany. The first American settlement was made in Pennsylvania, about twenty-five miles from Pittsburgh. Here the members built substantial dwellings, churches, mills, etc., and in 1803 the community numbered about 750. After a few years they adopted celibacy and prohibited the use of tobacco, thereby causing some to withdraw. In 1814 they purchased a tract of 30,000 acres in Posey county, Indiana, and removed there the next year. Ten years later they sold out and returned to Pennsylvania. They flourished for some years, and at one time their wealth was variously estimated at $5,000,000 to $25,000,000. In after years they dwindled in numbers, and in 1893 they sold out all their holdings to a Pittsburgh syndicate.

MARY ELLEN'S WAY

She Convinces Mr. Mary Ellen of the Wisdom of Joining a Country Club

I MET Mrs. Blank this afternoon on her way to the Country Club," remarked Mary Ellen to Mr. Mary Ellen. "Mr. Blank was going to meet her there for dinner. She says it's such a rest for him, after a day at the office, to get out where it's cool and green."

"My ain, friends is good enough for me," replied Mr. Mary Ellen. "I don't think much of these men who have to run away from home for their pleasures."

"I don't, either," said Mary Ellen, with a bright smile. "I'm glad you're not that kind. But Mr. Blank isn't either. He and Mrs. Blank always go together. And a little dinner out there on those broad, cool piazzas is nice."

"Everything goes cold before you can eat it," observed Mr. Mary Ellen practically.

Mary Ellen looked at him shrewdly for a minute. Then she continued: "And it must be pleasant to meet a lot of bright, up-to-date business men for a talk after dinner." Then Mary Ellen let the matter rest.

Some days later she inquired: "Do you notice how well Mr. Blank is looking? It must be the golf and tennis he's playing at the Club. Mustn't it be jolly to find everything for any game you may want to play, and shower baths and things to eat, all right to your hand? It's quite like being a millionaire."

"Paying for it is a millionaire proposition, too."

"No, the dues aren't high. And besides, associations like that give a man some class. He gets the air of a banker or capitalist."

"He gets expensive habits, too."

"Not if he has sense. At any rate, it's better than being stodgy and commonplace, and looking as if he didn't do anything but hoe cabbages," concluded Mary Ellen reflectively.

A few days later Mr. Mary Ellen said: "Blank was talking to me today about his Club. He certainly seems to get a lot of pleasure out of it."

"He surely does. But what I notice most," heard on Mary Ellen, "is the change in Blank himself. You ought to have went him the other evening talking about sports and finals and the Olympic games in Sweden or Russia or some place this year and things like that. Now you and I know how up-to-date Mr. Blank used to be. But you can't mix up with a lot of alert men such as are at that Club without being waked up. And a really smart fellow who goes in there—well, I bet he'd be President of the Club in no time." Mary Ellen paused and gazed into space as if seeing visions. Then she asked, "Is your corn coming up in the garden all right?"

"I guess so," said Mr. Mary Ellen, wearily.

"The weeds are certainly coming up. Seems to me all you do is weed that garden."

Several evenings later Mr. Mary Ellen said: "Blank certainly is enthusiastic about that Club. How would you like to join?"

"It would be a splendid thing for you," replied Mary Ellen, demurely.

"But I would want you to get something out of it," said Mr. Mary Ellen anxiously.

"Oh, I'll find something that I'll like. Besides, it's enough for me to know you're being benefited. I bet you'll be golf champion in a month."

Mr. Mary Ellen squared his shoulders. "I'll let Blank propose us at the next meeting."

A week later, as Mr. and Mrs. Mary Ellen in evening clothes came out of their house, Elizabeth Jane, their neighbor, said to Mr. Elizabeth Jane: "There they go to that Club dance, and here we sit like cabbages on a stalk."

"It doesn't do to be forever gadding around," replied Mr. Elizabeth Jane morosely.

"Well, I'll tell you right now," snapped Elizabeth Jane. "I'm going to join that Club. If you want to sit here and grow fast you can. But I'm not going to."

Then Elizabeth Jane relapsed into an injured silence, and Mr. Elizabeth Jane looked moodily down the street, knowing the time was coming when every night he'd have to dress and go to the Club.

THOSE who live on the mountain have a longer day than those who live in the valley. Sometimes all we need to brighten our day is to rise a little higher.

TIMELY SUGGESTIONS.

Small pieces of toilet soap, too small to use, should be kept in a small jar, and when a sufficient amount is collected ball with water until dissolved. Use this liquid soap for the shampoo, and there never will be the possibility of having small particles left in the hair. This is an excellent soap for the children to use, and they like it, too, especially the boy with the grimy hands.

Milk that is slightly scorched may be redeemed by putting it into a clean dish and letting it stand in cold water.

A good way to warm rolls or muffins: Lay a cloth in a colander or a sieve, and place the rolls in it over the teakettle; the water can be boiling for the tea or coffee and the rolls heating at the same time.

Every collar should have a partition or closet shut off from the rest, where the potatoes, fruit and perishable foods may be kept at a temperature below fifty.

A most dainty dessert and one which, if the materials are at hand, may be prepared in a short time is the following: Peel and cut in halves sufficient peaches for the number to serve. Whip cream, sweeten and flavor and a few marshmallows cut into quarters.

Another unusual peach dessert is this: Place the halves of very ripe peaches on a slice of angel cake and pour over sweetened whipped cream.

Do not tax the brain after a hearty meal, as the blood is all needed in the digestion of the food; if both functions are at work, one must suffer.

Grape fruit salad with a French dressing is an excellent digester at the end of a heavy meal, and makes an appropriate dessert.

Asparagus is said to be an excellent remedy for rheumatism; it is at least a pleasant one, and leaves no such after effects as many of the rheumatism medicines do.

When cooking beans for Boston baked beans, always soak them over night, and a little soda added while they are parboiling will soften the skins.

Beans should be baked at least eight hours in a moderate oven. Keep them covered until the last hour. A little mustard added to the molasses gives a good flavor to a pot of beans. Many like an onion baked with them for flavor.

Nellie Maxwell

that prevents their attaining that creamy lightness so desirable.

For custard a safe rule is four eggs, one cup of sugar and one level teaspoon of salt to each quart of milk used. Flavor to suit the taste and bake in custard cups or a baking dish. Have the heat moderate or the custard will break and turn to curd; test by running a knife into the custard. If it comes out clean it is done; if milky it needs longer cooking. To be smooth and solid they must be baked slowly; the holes often seen are caused by escaping bubbles of steam which rise when the heat reaches the bottom.

The eggs must be beaten separately and drained; cook the yolks before mixing. The whites of the eggs may be used for garnishing the custards when they are cold. Beat them until stiff, sweeten, add a tablespoon of powdered sugar to each egg, heap this on the custard and on the very top of each snowy mound drop a teaspoon of jelly or bright-colored marmalade.

Another way to prepare the whites of the eggs for garnishing is to drop them into boiling water by spoonfuls after they are whipped and sweetened and let them remain one moment. Lift out and pile on the dessert; half of the egg white may be tinted pink with fruit coloring before pouring.

Another custard that is novel is white cream—Scald three cups of thin cream or rich milk; add three tablespoons of sugar, stir until dissolved and set aside while you whip the whites of five eggs slightly; flavor and mix all together and pour into custard molds. Bake and serve with whipped cream.

When cream is to be whipped it should be sweetened and flavored first and be well chilled. While cream may be whipped with a Dover beater, it has a different and a finer texture when made up with a cream whip, masher or churn. When cream is difficult to whip add a bit of salt and with it the white of an egg. Sweetened and flavored, this is a choice dessert alone and is delicious with fresh or cooked fruit.

We are frequently asked: "Why cream fillings in and on cakes made by professionals keep their form and stiffness?" It is because gelatine is added to give body; no matter how stiff cream is whipped it will fall in a warm temperature unless gelatine is worked into it.

This brings us to the long list of delightful desserts that come under the head of "Bavarian" creams. A pint of cream will trouble in whipping. To every pint used add one-fourth of a box of gelatine, one-third of a cup of sugar and a teaspoon of flavoring. Dissolve the gelatine and whip with the remainder of the mixture. If it begins to thicken before stiff enough add a

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

SOME QUEER WAYS OF LOVING.

THERE are a great many ways of showing affection in this world. And some of them are very queer ways.

For instance, there is the person who loves his family very dearly, is very anxious when any of them are not well, and shows his anxiety by being very cross and touchy.

I know a dear lady who has very sensitive lungs and occasionally catches a very bad cold. I happened to visit at her home during one of these attacks and was surprised to find her husband, who is usually the most amiable and livable of men, extremely cross and disagreeable.

Every time she coughed he would look black as a thunder-cloud; and once when she went out walking and discovered after we had gone some distance that she had forgotten to wear her scarf, he was almost beside himself with rage and made the walk back through the rain, for she said she saw my surprise and astonishment, for she said she saw my surprise and astonishment, for she said she saw my surprise and astonishment.

Love, whose chief of expression is a misery-making jealousy, is familiar to all of us. One of the wisest young women I ever knew had the courage and common sense to break her engagement to a man who loved her dearly when she found that his love was going to express itself in that manner.

Unlike the ordinary man, he didn't need any expression of liking on her part to arouse his jealousy. If anyone else admired or liked her, that was enough to set him off. On one occasion he became so violently jealous because another man admired the dimple in her cheek. The girl was wise enough to realize that the suffering of a separation would be infinitely less than the lifetime of suffering such a love would probably inflict.

The love that shows itself in hampering its object by continual fretting and worrying is another one of those strange affections. One of my friends is an only child of a passionately devoted mother whose love takes this unfortunate channel. Instead of wanting him to live the broadest and happiest life possible, she is continually asking him to give up this or that normal pleasure or activity because, "I shall worry you."

I wonder if I have done right to call the affections that manifest themselves in such strange ways by the beautiful name of love? Do they deserve the name? I don't love the feeling on earth so much as the happiness of its object. Do they meet the test of that touchstone?

Little hot cream that you have reserved for the purpose.

A June dessert made of the above with strawberries. Line a mold or a smooth bowl with perfect berries; dust them with powdered sugar and fill with the whipped cream. Place on ice until chilled, then invert on a serving platter. Strawberry leaves make a pretty garnish.

Custard and strawberries with whipped cream is a variation of the above that those who are fond of custard will like.

Cook the custard and whip the cream with gelatine, as directed, mix these in alternate layers with the berries, having the first layer and the last, or top layer, of cream and custard. When serving slice downward. Serve with a sauce made of the whipped whites of eggs, sweetened and colored with fruit juice.

CHOICE OF MILK FOR INFANTS.

If the natural food cannot be supplied to the infant—mother's milk—the best substitute is milk of another healthy mother. Next in value is milk from a healthy cow, next pasteurized milk as ordinarily supplied in cities, next condensed milk, then bottled milk, and last, sterilized milk, the last two being always inadmissible. I have found by several cases that it is much better to supply milk from a cow and the milk from a "scrub" cow is preferable to that from a high-bred animal which contains more fat and is more likely to be infected by tuberculosis or other disease which is not communicable to the milk.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will peroxide and ammonia destroy superfluous hair forever? How much does it take and how should it be mixed? How often do you apply it and if it doesn't destroy the hair, it won't make hair grow, will it?

A. AND M. S. Nothing will destroy hair except the electric needle.

Do not by any means use a mixture of peroxide and ammonia for such a purpose. It will burn the skin and in time make it look dead and crinkly.

Peroxide used alone, or diluted with water according to direction of your skin, will not show. Put it gently on the skin morning and evening, until the hairs are bleached. Peroxide will not make hair grow.

A drop or two of ammonia in the water for bathing your face, of few drops in the bath, will be found soothing and cleansing; but most people are apt to use too much and this will burn the skin. Do not use the peroxide, either, any more than necessary.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been a faithful reader of your column and have learned many useful things from it. I would like to ask you if you can tell me of a good glue or mullage that will not run or make a blot. How can I address you a personal letter?

Library mode is the latest thing to use. You ought to be able to get it in every stationery store or drug store. It will not do to glue china or wooden things, however.

All letters reach me personally. If you do not wish your letter published, simply say so and your wish will be respected.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I wish to secure some kind of valuable woolen goods for light weight suitable for a shirtwaist skirt. What would you suggest?

A good quality of lightweight white serge is about as desirable a material for your purpose as could be found. It can be washed like a wool sweater in lukewarm soap suds (made with a pure white soap), rinsed in water of equal temperature and hung out, without wrinkling, to dry. The new serges soon discovers that she is barely tolerated.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Why, even surface is a big item—when one has to ask father for it, or get mother to wheedle it out of him. Such a girl practically has no chance of making a suitable marriage. She has no means of meeting desirable young men. She cannot dress to attract them. She is uneasy in the company of strangers because she has had so little practice coming in contact with people. She doesn't know how to judge or treat a man.

A girl so situated either becomes a sort of a nun, because she has no means of getting away from the isolation of her home; or she joins that restless colony which glazes and parades around street corners where boys and young men congregate to stare and make remarks.

Of course I am talking about the income of the family—and there are a great many such homes. Many a home of seeming prosperity is run on debt, and many a home never knew an easy moment until the boys and girls began to "help along."

It is true, also, that many girls spend some of their savings in junk—candy.

The love of flattery is in the average feminine heart, and is not at all confined to the little shop girl with her imitation jewelry. After all, she is but imitating other women who are better off and display their taste for gawgaws and "if it were not for women of means and prominence who establish the style for us" will say earrings—the little shop girl wouldn't be wearing them either.

Even church costs money, and the girl who can't keep up in Bible class and Young People's society expenses, to say nothing of dressing so that her associates won't be ashamed of her, understands the lot of a girl in such a family who stays home and tries to exist on what she gets there?

Does she know that she is practically shut out from almost every recreation necessary to the well-being of a girl?

The Three Guardsmen

... By ...

ALEXANDRE DUMAS

"Do not kill him, young man, I beg of you. I have an old affair to settle with him when I am cured and sound again. Dismarm him only—make sure of his sword. That's it, that's it! Well done! Very well done!"

This exclamation was drawn from Athos by seeing the sword of Chabucane fly twenty paces from him. D'Artagnan and Chabucane sprang forward at the same instant, the one to recover, the other to obtain the sword; but D'Artagnan, being the more active, reached it first and placed his foot upon it.

Chabucane immediately ran to that one of the guards that Aramis had killed and returned toward D'Artagnan, but on his way he met Athos, who, during this relief which D'Artagnan had procured him, had recovered his breath. D'Artagnan perceived that it would be disabbling Athos not to leave him alone, and in a few minutes Chabucane fell, with a sword thrust through his throat.

At the same instant Aramis placed his sword point on the breast of his fallen enemy and compelled him to ask for mercy.

There only then remained Porthos and himself. It was necessary to put an end to the affair. The watch might come up and take all the combatants, wounded or not, royalists or cardinalists. Athos, Aramis and D'Artagnan surrounded Mercat and required him to surrender.

Bravery is always respected, even in an enemy. The musketeers saluted Mercat with their swords and returned them to their sheaths. D'Artagnan did the same; then, assisted by Mercat, the only one left standing, he bore Jusac, Chabucane and that one of Aramis' adversaries who was only wounded, under the porch of the convent. The fourth, as we have said, was dead. They then rang the bell and, carrying away four swords out of five, they took their road, intoxicated with joy, toward the hotel of M. de Treville. They walked arm in arm. The heart of D'Artagnan swam in delight. He marched between Athos and Porthos, pressing them tenderly.

"If I am not yet a musketeer," said he to his new friends, "at least I have entered upon my apprenticeship, haven't I?"

CHAPTER V.

His Majesty King Louis XIII.

THE affair made a great noise. M. de Treville scolded his musketeers in public and congratulated them in private. In the evening M. de Treville attended the king's play table. The king was winning and was in an excellent humor.

"Come here, monsieur le capitaine," said he, "come here, that I may scold you. Do you know that his eminence has just been here to make fresh complaints against your musketeers?"

"Why, they are very droll!"

"No, sire," replied Treville, who saw at the first glance which way things would take—"no, sire; on the contrary, they are good creatures, as meek as lambs and have but one desire, I'll be their warranty, and that is that their swords may never leave their scabbards but in your majesty's service."

"Listen to M. de Treville," said the king, "listen to him! Would not one say he was speaking of a religious community? La Vieillesse, take my place. I must speak to M. de Treville on an affair of importance." Then turning toward M. de Treville and walking with him toward the embrasure of a window:

"How did the thing happen? Let us see, for you know, my dear captain, a judge must hear both sides."

"Good Lord! In the most simple and natural manner possible. Three of my best soldiers, whom your majesty knows by name, M. Athos, Porthos and Aramis, had made a party of pleasure with a young cadet from Gascony whom I had introduced to them the same morning. The party was to take place at St. Germain. I believe, and they had appointed to meet at the Carmes-Deschaux when they were disturbed by M. de Jusac, M. Chabucane, Mercat and two other guards, who certainly did not go there in such a numerous company without some ill intention against the musketeers."

"You say, then, that the cardinal's guards sought a quarrel with the musketeers?"

"I say that it is probable that things have fallen out so, but I will not swear to it, sire."

"You are right, Treville, but they were not alone, your musketeers. They had a youth with them?"

"Yes, sire, three, so that three of the king's musketeers, one of whom was wounded and a youth, not only maintained their ground against five of the most terrible of his eminence's guards, but absolutely brought four of them to the earth."

"Why, this is a victory," cried the king, glowing with delight, "a complete victory! Four men, one of them wounded, and a youth, any you?"

"One scarcely attained the age of a young man, but who, however, behaved himself well; I should like to see this young man, Treville. I should like to see him. And if anything can be done—well, we will make it our business. Tomorrow at midday, Treville."

"Shall I bring him alone?"

"No; bring me all four together. I wish to thank them all at once. Devoted men are so rare, Treville, we must recompense devotedness."

That evening the three musketeers were informed of the honor which was granted them. As they had long been acquainted with the king, they were not much excited by the circumstances, but D'Artagnan, with his Gascon imagination, saw in his future fortune and passed the night in golden dreams. As early, then, as 8 o'clock he was at the apartment of Athos.

D'Artagnan found the musketeer dressed and ready to go out. As the hour to wait upon the king was not till 12, Athos had made a party with Porthos and Aramis to play a game at tennis in a tennis court situated near the stables of the Luxembourg. Athos invited D'Artagnan to follow them.

At the game one of the balls launched by Porthos' Herculean hand passed so close to D'Artagnan's face that he thought it, instead of passing near, it had hit him; his audience would have been probably lost, as it would have been impossible for him to have presented himself before the king. He saluted Aramis and Porthos politely, declaring that he would not resume the game until he should be prepared to play with them on more equal terms, and he went and took his place near the cord and in the gallery.

Unfortunately for D'Artagnan, there was among the spectators one of his eminence's guards who was irritated by the defeat of his companions. He addressed his neighbor:

"It is not astonishing that that young man should be afraid of a ball. He is doubtless a musketeer apprentice."

D'Artagnan turned round as if a serpent had stung him and fixed his eyes intensely upon the guard who had just made this insolent speech.

"I beg you will follow me," he said. "And when?" asked the guard, with the same jeering air.

"Immediately, if you please."

"And you know who I am, without doubt?"

"I! No, I assure you I am completely ignorant. Nor does it much concern me."

"You're in the wrong there, for if you know my name perhaps you would not be in such a hurry."

"What is your name, then?"

"Bernajoux, at your service."

"Well, then, M. Bernajoux," said D'Artagnan quietly, "I will wait for you at the door."

The name of Bernajoux was known to everybody. D'Artagnan alone excepted perhaps, for it was one of those which figured most frequently in the daily bravado, which all the effects of the cardinal had not been able to suppress.

The musketeers did not perceive their young companion go out, who, as he had told his eminence's guard he would, stopped outside the door. An instant after the guard descended. As D'Artagnan had no time to lose, on account of the audience of the king, which was fixed for midday, he cast his eyes around and, seeing that the street was empty, said:

"I have very little time to spare, having an appointment at 12 precisely. Guard, then, monsieur, guard!"

Bernajoux, was not a man to have such a compliment paid to him twice. In an instant his sword glittered in his hand, and he sprang upon his adversary, whom from his youth he hoped to intimidate.

But D'Artagnan had on the preceding day gone through his apprenticeship. Fresh sharpened by his victory, full of the hopes of future favor, he was resolved not to give back a step. So the two swords were crossed close to the hilts, and as D'Artagnan stood firm, it was his adversary who made the retreating step. But D'Artagnan touched his adversary on the shoulder. D'Artagnan immediately made a step backward and raised his sword. But Bernajoux cried out that it was nothing and, rushing blindly upon him, absolutely split himself upon D'Artagnan's sword. As, however, he did not fall, and as he did not declare himself conquered, but only broke away toward the mansion of M. de Tromoulle, in whose service he had a relation, D'Artagnan was ignorant of the seriousness of the last wound his adversary had received. He pressed him warmly and without doubt would soon have completed his work with a third blow when the noise which arose from the street, being heard in the tennis court, two of the friends of the guard rushed, sword in hand, from the court and fell upon the conqueror. But Athos, Porthos and Aramis quickly appeared in their turn and the moment the two guards attacked their young companion drove them back. Bernajoux now fell, and as the guards were only two against four they began to cry: "To the rescue! The hotel de Tromoulle!" At these cries all who were in the hotel rushed out, falling upon the four companions, who on their side cried aloud, "To the rescue, musketeers!"

This cry was generally attended to, for the musketeers were known to be enemies to the cardinal and were beloved on account of the hatred they bore to his enemies. The melee became general, but strength was on the side of the musketeers. The cardinal's guards and M. de la Tromoulle's people retreated into the mansion, the doors of which they closed just in time to prevent their enemies from entering with them. As to the wounded man, he had been taken in at once and, as we have said, in a very bad state.

The musketeers made their way to the house of M. de Treville, who was waiting for them, already informed of this fresh disturbance.

"Quick, to the Louvre!" said he. "To the Louvre without losing an instant, and let us endeavor to see the king before he is prejudiced by the cardinal. We will describe the thing to him as a consequence of the affair of yesterday, and the two will pass off together!"

M. de Treville, accompanied by his four young men, directed his course toward the Louvre; but, to the great astonishment of the captain of the musketeers, he was informed that the king was gone sing hunting in the forest of St. Germain.

"Has the king seen the cardinal?" asked M. de Treville.

"Most probably he has," replied the valet de chambre, "for I saw the horses harnessed to his eminence's carriage this morning, and when I asked where he was going I was told to St. Germain."

"He is beforehand with us," said M. de Treville. "Gentlemen, I will see the king this evening; but, as to you, I do not advise you to risk doing so."

This advice was too reasonable and, moreover, came from a man who knew the king too well to allow the four young men to dispute it. M. de Treville recommended them each to retire to his apartment and wait for news from him.

M. de Treville sent one of his servants to M. de la Tromoulle with a letter in which he begged of him to effect the cardinal's guard from his house and to reprimand his people for their audacity in making a sortie against the king's musketeers. But M. de la Tromoulle, already prejudiced by his eagerness, whose relation, as we already know, Bernajoux was, replied that it was neither for M. de la Treville nor the musketeers to complain, but, on the contrary, he, whose people the musketeers had assaulted, M. de Treville went himself to M. de la Tromoulle.

"Monsieur," said M. de Treville, "we fancy that we have each cause to complain of the other, and I am come to endeavor to clear up this affair. How is M. Bernajoux, your esquire's relation?"

"Why, monsieur, very ill indeed! In addition to the sword thrust in his arm, which is not dangerous, he has received another right through his lungs, of which the doctor speaks very unfavorably."

"Can he speak?"

"With difficulty, but he can speak."

"Well, monsieur, let us go to him. Let us assure him in the name of the God before whom he is called upon, perhaps quickly, to appear, to speak the truth. I will take him for judge in his own cause, monsieur, and will believe what he will say."

That which M. de Treville had foreseen happened. Placed between his Bernajoux split himself upon D'Artagnan's sword.

and death, as Bernajoux was, he had no idea for a moment of concealing the truth, and he described to the two nobles the affair exactly as it had passed.

This was all that M. de Treville wanted. He wished Bernajoux a speedy recovery, took leave of M. de la Tromoulle, returned to his hotel and immediately sent word to the four friends that he awaited their company to dinner.

Toward 6 o'clock M. de Treville announced that it was time to go to the Louvre, but as the hour of audience granted by his majesty was past he placed himself with the four young men in the antechamber.

Louis XIII. appeared, walking fast. He was in hunting costume, covered with dust, wearing large boots and had a whip in his hand. At the first glance D'Artagnan judged that the mind of the king was stormy.

"Matters go but badly," said Athos, smiling, "and we shall not be made knights of the order this time."

(To be continued.)

Valuable Time Wasted.

"The reason so many brilliant people don't get on in the world," says the Philosopher of Folly, "is that they waste so much time showing other people how brilliant they are."

CONVENTION-CROWDS. HAVE ALL DEPARTED

Eagles' Gathering Brought Visitors From all Parts of the State to Janesville.

One of the most successful, if not the most successful, state conventions of the Fraternal Order of Eagles to a close yesterday and the delegates and convention visitors have all departed to their homes well pleased with Janesville's hospitality. It was unfortunate that the last day should have been marred by rain but even this did not deter many auto parties driving from Madison, Edgerton, Evansville and Beloit to attend the auto and motorcycle races and witness the flights of the aviator.

The aeroplane proved to be the one big drawing card of all the attractions outside of the parade of Wednesday. Aside from the hundreds who witnessed the flights many others inspected the machine while it stood on the ground. Its big canvas wings are covered with names of persons who have witnessed flights and pencilled their names. Strangers to say among them is that of Floyd Allen, the much sought for West Virginia mountaineer, wanted for murder. How his name came to be signed Mr. Ward who owns the machine does not know.

In the flight on Tuesday and Wednesday, when aviator Nels Nelson took the moving picture of the crowd, accomplished by a bird man, that of running his machine with one hand and turning the crank of the moving picture machine with the other. The machine was shipped to Valparaiso, Indiana today for flights in that city.

One of the features of the city's decorations was the giant key of welcome that was swung across the intersection of Main and Milwaukee streets. It was constructed by Contractor Joseph Denning and was so securely strung that it could not be taken down and carried away as have similar decorations in other convention cities, by the Milwaukee Aero who claim they have the key to every city which has entertained the state convention.

At the conclusion of the business sessions Thursday the business men of the city donated the use of their cars for a hurried trip through the city for the delegates and many enjoyed the view so hurriedly taken and expressed their appreciation of the compliment paid them.

Taking it all in all it was a great convention and the parade on Wednesday was one of the best that has been held in this city for many years. The various features that took part in the parade were typical of the members of the order all over the state. The "Honey Band" one of the features of the Wednesday evening parade and the vote for women contingent were amusing and helped out the carnival spirit.

OLD PARTY WRANGLE GIVES "DRYS" HOPE

Prohibition Forces are Pushing Their Cause in Wisconsin With Unusual Strength.

The "drys" consider these times of old party wrangling as a day of opportunity for them, especially in the state of Wisconsin. The recent state convention was considered a great success and the nomination of Chas. L. Hill of Rosendale as the gubernatorial bearer has inspired the rank and file with new vigor. The balance of the state ticket which is counted unusually strong in personnel, is as follows: For Lieutenant Governor, Joseph V. Collins of Stevens Point; for Secretary of State, Herbert J. Noyes of Muskego; for State Treasurer, Thos. Edwards of Ashland; for Attorney General, Herbert S. Niggelko of Madison; Wisconsin's platform is also being received with enthusiasm by the rank and file and the strong state ticket as a talking point, the "drys" think they are going to capture hundreds of voters whose party they have been broken by the present mix up.

Eugene W. Chafin has been engaged for seven more days campaigning, beginning next Sunday June 23d, when he will deliver three non-political lectures at Valton, Ironton and Lime Ridge. He will then speak three times a day that week, with the exception of Tuesday as follows: Monday June 24th, Merrimac, Oregon and Leoti; Wednesday June 26th, Palmyra, Whitewater and St. Atkinson; Thursday June 27th, Black Earth, Mazumunda and Wyoming; Friday June 28th, Windsor, Mauston and Lindau; Saturday June 29th Beaver Dam. He will close his campaign with three more Sunday addresses, June 30th at Edgerton, Allion and Stoughton.

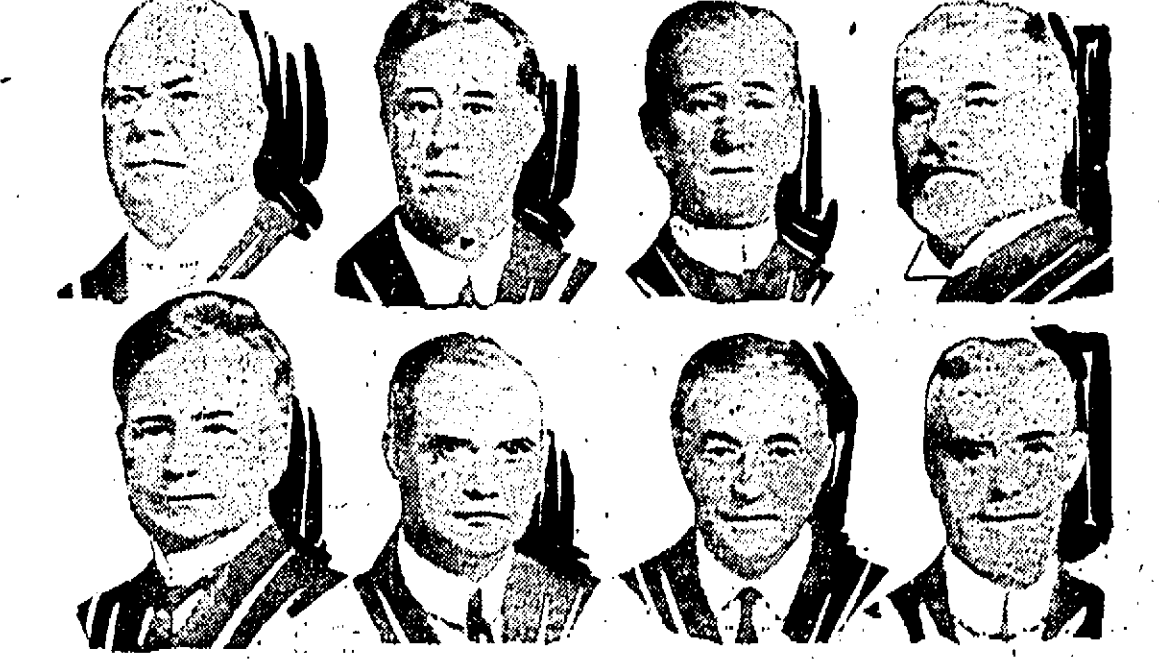

Chafin has made such a hit with his new speech, "Government by Administration" that the state committee will use it as a campaign document this year. Two years ago, Chafin conducted an anti-county opinion campaign in Wisconsin and provoked some criticism but the character of this new speech and its application to the situation is so sweeping and timely that his critics of two years ago have been turned into enthusiasts this year.

Following the Chafin meetings, the prohibitionists will begin at once the circulation of nominating petitions for legislative and county tickets throughout the state. They propose to come to the September primary in full battle array and predict a record-breaking vote in Wisconsin in November.

Oliver W. Stewart of Illinois will come to Wisconsin also for a series of meetings in the middle of August. Stewart is talked of as Presidential candidate this year. He is considered by many to be the biggest speaker among the "drys."
